GROVE ROAD PRIMARY SCHOOL

Children hop to it to support kids' charity

Children taking part in the skip-athon

Children at Grove Road Primary School, in Tring, took part in a whole-school skip-athon to raise money for the NSPCC.

Children worked in house teams, taking turns to skip to music, so that as a team they skipped continuously for 30 minutes.

The skip-athon formed part of Buddy's Big Workout, an initiative to get school-children involved in raising money for the NSPCC.

NSPCC representatives visited Grove Road to talk to the children in assemblies and workshops. Children were introduced to Buddy, NSPCC's friendly mascot, and discussed how to stay safe and get help if they have any worries.

The Speak Out. Stay Safe programme is designed to empower children. By working with schools, the NSPCC aims to have a significant impact on preventing abuse and keeping children safe.

Assistant headteacher Katie Reeve said: "As a school we are pleased to support the NSPCC through our sponsored skip-athon."
